Zombie Apocalypse – Are You Ready?

The City of Roseburg would like to let educators know about some of the resources available to help teach students about emergency preparedness. Our own website at www.cityofroseburg.org has flood plain information under the Community Development Department tab and the Fire Department also has a wealth of information on their site.

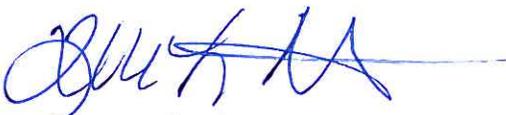

Nationally, the Centers for Disease Control and FEMA provide information kits and educational lesson plans you can use to help keep your students safe at school and at home. The tips in their Zombie Apocalypse parody show how to prepare for any emergency. One helpful scenario you can show your kids is the CDC's Emergency Kits 101 at:

http://www.cdc.gov/phpr/documents/learn/Emergency\_kits.pdf

I hope you can find a few minutes this month to spend teaching your children about emergency preparedness – even if the only zombies we see will be trick or treating this Halloween.

If you have any questions, feel free to give me a call at 541-492-6750.

Thanks for your help in keeping us all a little bit safer!
